Three More Bodies Are Discovered

RICHMOND, Ind. (AP) — Searchers found three more bodies today in the rubble of Richmond's business district hit by explosions and fire during a busy shopping day, state police said, raising the known death toll to 42.

Only 25 bodies have been identified and state police still list 21 persons missing.

Searchers said that the missing include five employees of Holthouse Furniture Store which was reduced to twisted girders and piles of hot bricks.

Fire followed the Saturday explosion in this eastern Indiana city and spread to adjacent buildings. Three buildings were destroyed and five damaged severely in a two-block area. Windows were shattered for blocks around.

More than 100 persons were injured. Eighteen remained in hospitals today, three in critical condition.

State police said the blast erupted in the basement of Marting Arms Co., a sporting goods store where gunpowder was stored for hunters and skeet shooters. Richmond Fire Marshal Fred Klotz said a large shipment of gunpowder reportedly was delivered to the store recently.

FBI agents said they were investigating the possibility of a gas leak as a factor in the explosion.

"It seemed like somebody pulled the whole world out from under me," said Leo Collins, who was walking near the Marting store. Collins was knocked down but escaped injury.

Capt. Kenneth E. Paust of the Indiana National Guard said the ceiling of a restaurant where he was having lunch began falling on customers.

"I ran into the street and saw an injured woman atop Sergeant's paint store," Paust said. "I got a ladder and with the aid of others got her down. She said she had been blown onto the roof by the explosion."

Only a crater remained where the sporting goods store stood at the Sixth and Main Streets. Neighboring buildings were torn apart. Flames damaged other buildings.

Some of the dead and injured were trapped in cars demolished by the blast and falling debris. One car was hurled 50 feet. Officials said more than 15 vehicles were demolished.

Several hundred volunteers joined police, firemen and National Guardsmen searching the rubble. Many of the dead were burned or mutilated. Bodies were taken to the temporary morgue in the armory of this city of 44,000 on the Ohio line.

Charges Against Monteers

Misdemeanor charges were filed in Magistrate Court late Friday afternoon against William M. Monteer and Junior Monteer, stemming from the incident at an abandoned quarry March 30 which resulted in the death of 14-year-old Steven Smith.

Charges of disturbance of the peace by fighting and common assault were filed by Prosecuting Attorney Henry Keeler. Keeler also said Monday that the parole of a 16-year-old boy had been revoked and another 16-year-old boy was charged as a result of the incident at the quarry.

William Monteer is currently being held in the city jail on a city conviction and Junior Monteer is being held in the Cass County jail on a moving traffic violation. Keeler said Monday that Junior Monteer will probably be turned over to Howard County authorities after his release from Cass County on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Keeler said, "The investigation is continuing; more charges may be filed before we are done."

A coroner's jury last week returned a verdict of accidental death in connection with Smith's drowning.

Results of High Winds

Wind caused scattered damage in the Sedalia area Sunday. At top, a tree rests on the new Western Union building, 212 West Seventh, after being toppled by the winds. In the bottom photo, a Cessna Skylane lies on its top after a gust of wind blew it over Sunday as it was turning from the runway to the taxi strip. The pilot, John Cone, Miami, Okla., was apparently uninjured. The plane was re-routed from Marshall after officials at the Marshall airport told Cone to try to land in Sedalia because the wind was so strong in Marshall. (Democrat-Capitol Photos)

Heavy Winds Cause Damage Over Area

Heavy winds in the Sedalia area Sunday caused damage, including turning over an airplane at the Sedalia Airport. An airport spokesman said the airport recorded winds of up to 50 miles an hour and other area estimates put wind gusts as high as 70 miles an hour.

The plane, flown by John E. Cone, Miami, Okla., flipped over Sunday afternoon as it was turning from the runway onto a taxi strip. An airport spokesman

No Injuries As Jetliner Crash Lands

LONDON (AP)—A BOAC jetliner with 126 persons on board crashed in flames on a runway at London's airport today just after taking off.

The British Overseas Airways Corp. said it knew of 103 survivors. The airport fire brigade reported three bodies recovered from the wreckage of the four-engine Boeing 707 bound for Australia. Police said they knew of five killed—three women, a man and a child. Eighteen persons are missing.

Scotland Yard reported it knew of 22 persons injured in hospitals, some of them badly hurt. Thirty others were in the airport medical center.

Australia House in London said 24 of the jet's passengers were migrants flying out to build a new life downunder.

The plane's pilot radioed just after the plane was airborne that one of the jet engines had broken off.

BOAC said five of the aircraft's technical crew—the men in the cockpit—were safe. But they had no knowledge of the six stewards and hostesses aboard.

said the plane had tried to land in Marshall several times before the Marshall Airport advised Cone to try landing in Sedalia because of the high winds in Marshall.

As the plane was turning from the runway on to the taxi strip, a gust of wind of approximately 40 miles an hour flipped the plane over. According to the airport, Cone was apparently uninjured but damage to the plane was estimated at $4,000.

Service to Missouri Public Service customers was also cut off in several areas of the city for short periods Sunday, according to an MPS spokesman. Power was cut off in the 18th and Brown area for approximately one hour when a primary line was knocked out of service. Secondary lines were also damaged by tree limbs falling, which caused minor outages.

Short outages of 10 to 15 minutes occurred in the city when tree limbs fell on primary lines causing fuses to blow out, according to the MPS. No poles were broken, according to a company spokesman.

A large tree in front of the new Western Union building, 212 West Seventh, was blown over onto the building Sunday. The tree apparently only damaged a metal stripping on the edge at the top of the building.

The heavy winds also blew out two plate glass windows in the old Routsong Motor Co. building on South Kentucky.

The police blotter for Sunday also listed damage at the One Hour Martinizing Cleaners, where a door was torn off the hinges, and a report of a live wire down in the alley in back of 642 East 12th.

Clean-Up Work Gets Underway In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Riot-ripped Washington gingerly stepped back toward normal today as cleanup and relief plunged ahead against a backdrop of rigid military control.

Arrest and fire totals inched upward but at midmorning the mayor's office and military command said "all reports indicate another night of calm in the city."

While demolition cranes swung against tottering walls along burned-out 7th Street, city officials pushed plans to aid the hungry and homeless from Negro areas pillaged and burned since Thursday night.

A curfew lifted at 6:30 a.m. Traffic was its normal jumbled self by midmorning as schools, stores and offices opened.

But pairs of federal troops or national guardsmen stood guard at the doors of stores—even at some areas several miles from the riot area.

Police blamed six deaths and 1,029 injuries on the rioting. They reported 5,395 arrests and 814 fire calls in the city since the violence began.

to about 250. Spectators also lined the streets in the general vicinity.

The Rev. Ron Beckman, president of the Ministers Association, greeted the crowd and introduced speakers.

Homer Marshall, president of the Northside Citizens Association, reaffirmed King's commitment to non-violence and called for carrying on his programs. The Rev. Donald Frank, president of the local branch of the NAACP, said King chose to give his life for what he believed in, called King "a citizen of the world," and said his name would live on in history.

The Rev. Marvin Albright, chairman of the Sedalia Human Rights Commission, said King stood for a reasonable approach to solving racial problems and added that the group he heads stands for the same thing.

Mayor Ralph Walker, who had issued a proclamation calling for the memorial observance, gave the principal address at the assembly.

Walker called the murder of King "terrible and graphic proof that violence and hatred can only destroy," adding that his death "has left us with a legacy of challenge, understanding and brotherhood. In order to assure equal rights, equal opportunity and the dignity of man, both

More Red Territory Safe From Bombers

SAIGON (AP) — President Johnson has put almost 5,500 more square miles of North Vietnam off limits to American bombers, U.S. sources said today. Below the demilitarized zone, allied ground forces reported killing more than 700 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong in weekend fighting.

Informed sources in Saigon said the American air forces have been told to keep their raids below the 19th Parallel, which is about 170 miles above the demilitarized zone. In the last four days U.S. bombers have struck no farther north than 160 miles above the DMZ.

Publicly, Johnson's order of March 31 setting the 20th Parallel as the northern boundary for air attacks still stands, and the sources said the President did not publicize the new curtailment because he wanted to leave open the option of bombing up to the 20th Parallel, or some 225 miles above the DMZ.

The U.S. Command in Saigon declined comment on the reported new bombing limits. In Washington, assistant White House press secretary Tom Johnson said there is no change from the March 31 order.

Although the area open to attack has been reduced, U.S. warplanes have more than doubled the pre-curtailed number of strike missions against North Vietnam's southern panhandle, mostly against enemy supply lines and convoys.

U.S. pilots flew a total of 134 missions over the North Vietnamese panhandle Sunday, the highest number in three months, since 144 were flown on Jan. 6. Military spokesmen said clearer weather, as the northeast monsoons move away, made the increase possible.

The fliers attacked North Vietnamese supply lines and gun positions, with the northernmost target an antiaircraft position 160 miles north of the demilitarized zone, the U.S. Command said.

In the ground war, the U.S. troops that lifted the siege of Khe Sanh reported killing 118 North Vietnamese soldiers in a series of clashes over the weekend as they combed the jungled hills around the base on the northwest frontier.

The searching troops also reported finding the bodies of 198 enemy soldiers who apparently were killed by U.S. artillery and air strikes.

Seven miles to the southwest, U.S. artillery and rocket-firing helicopters smashed four enemy trucks and a tracked vehicle, presumably a tank, U.S. headquarters said.

At one time, an estimated 20,000 North Vietnamese surrounded Khe Sanh but the latest estimate is 7,000 enemy troops. Some enemy units were believed fading back toward the hills of neighboring Laos. But North Vietnamese gunners fired 300 mortar and artillery rounds into allied positions late Saturday and Sunday, killing one American and wounding 47.

black and white, we must accept this challenge."

The mayor went on to say that the white man must put aside fear and distrust and face the issue squarely. "It is time for the white American to listen to what his Negro brother is saying and has been saying for years, and it is time to listen without prejudice but with compassion and understanding," he asserted.

Closing his talk by bringing the issue down to the local level, Walker said:

"If the white man has failed to listen before, let us begin to listen now within our own community. If we have been

Federal Troops Bring Uneasy Calm to Cities Torn by Riots

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Looting and fires increased today in Baltimore as an eight block area of the city was hit by bands of looters. One entire city block was in flames.

Violence, looting and arson scourged sections of Baltimore and Pittsburgh Sunday, but Army troops and National Guardsmen, rushed in to quell the disorders, enforced an uneasy calm today.

Silent Negro Mourners In Tribute to Dr. King

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. came to Memphis today and joined the silent march of thousands of Negroes and civil rights leaders in honor of her slain husband.

Mrs. King and three of her four children joined the march, which had halted a few minutes after it started to wait for her, at the corner of Main and Beale Streets.

She had arrived at 11:17 a.m. (CST) from Atlanta aboard the private jet plane of singer Harry Belafonte. The plane touched down just one minute after the march had started from a grey

Arabs Chased Out of Desert By Israelites

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli troops in helicopters chased a band of Arab commandos out of the Negev Desert and pursued them six miles inside Jordan south of the Dead Sea today, the Israeli army reported.

The Israelis withdrew after inflicting a number of casualties and blowing up part of an Arab guerrilla complex, the army added.

A military spokesman in Tel Aviv said the action was a limited one that lasted 105 minutes. He denied a Jordanian claim that Israeli armored columns and helicopter troops covered by jet fighters had invaded Jordan.

Jordanian military headquarters also reported fighting north of the Dead Sea near the Allenby Bridge, a major crossing point between Jordan and the Israeli-occupied sector of Jordan. The sound of gunfire could be heard in Amman, 25 miles east of the cease-fire line.

The Tel Aviv communique said the Israeli force entered Jordan 35 miles south of the Dead Sea near Dahal, part of the alleged Arab commando complex hit by Israeli troops in their lightning strikes inside Jordan on March 21.

Twenty-four have died in the trouble which struck more than a dozen U.S. cities. In addition, more than 1,200 have been injured and almost 6,000 arrested.

While the violence in most of the major cities ebbed, trouble struck again in Nashville, Tenn. Only hours after segments of the 4,000 National Guardsmen were on duty, the ROTC building on the campus of Tennessee A&I State University, site of recent racial violence, was destroyed by fire Sunday night. Police said it appeared to be the work of arsonists.

Violence in Baltimore broke out Saturday and threatened to spread Sunday into Baltimore County, causing Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew to call for federal troops.

Four persons were killed in the violence and more than 300 injured. One official said there had been 420 fires set, 550 stores looted and more than $250 persons arrested.

More than 1,800 National Guardsmen marched into Pittsburgh's predominantly Negro Hill District Sunday night, but by early today a state police official said "things are settling down."

Scattered firebombings and looting were reported far into the night, but the frequency dropped sharply about three hours after a 7 p.m. curfew went into effect. The streets were almost deserted by late evening.

30-Day Stay Of Execution For Duisen

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court today granted a 30-day stay of execution to Theodore Anthony Duisen who had been scheduled to die in Missouri's gas chamber April 19 for the strangling death of Patricia Sutterfield, 17. Her body was found in the Meramec River in May 1964.

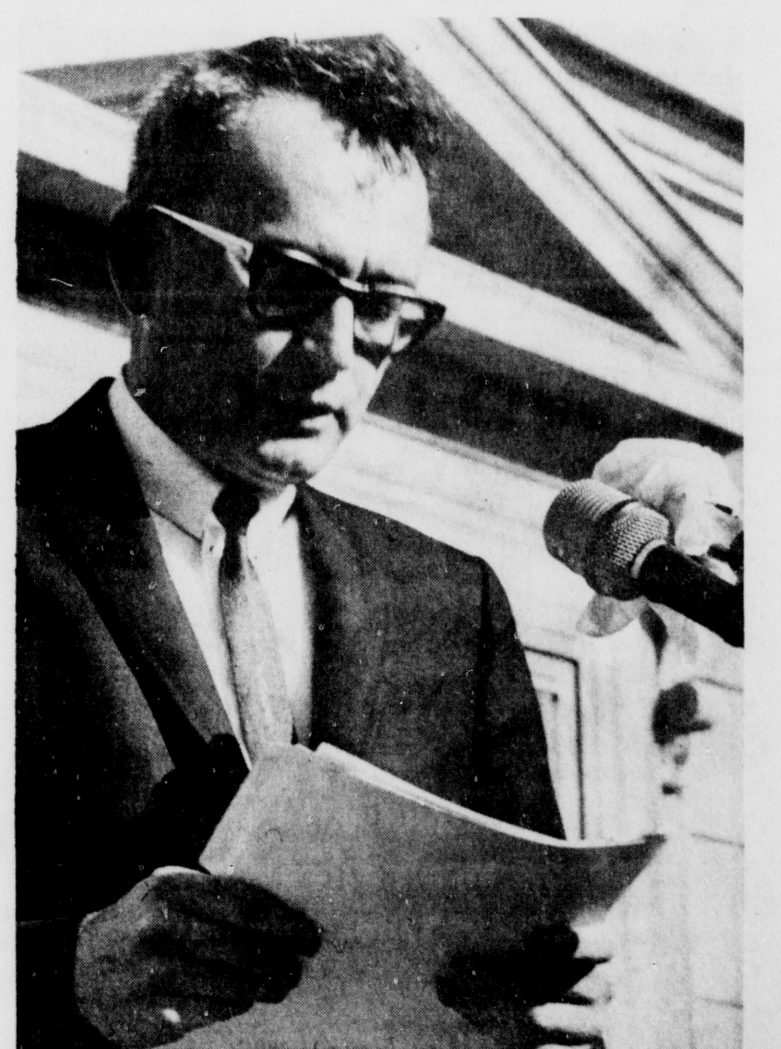

Duisen's attorney requested the stay for time to file an additional appeal. He said the death sentence was "cruel and unusual punishment and, further, that the method and means of jury selection in capital cases denies appellant equal protection under the laws."

In the lower court, testimony showed Mrs. Sutterfield had been working for Duisen as a prostitute. May 24, 1964, he shaved off her hair and dressed her in a man's sport shirt and blue jeans and killed her.

The U. S. Supreme court recently rejected Duisen's appeal and a month ago the Missouri Supreme Court set the April 19 date for the execution. The court's action today delays the execution at least 30 days.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Our seven-year-old daughter loved her grandpa very much. He was a kindly person who used to take Mary for walks and tell her fascinating stories. Grandpa passed away suddenly two weeks ago. The child was very unhappy about his passing away and it was hard for her to understand why a God who is good would take away her best friend.

Last week Mary was sitting on her grandmother's lap. I heard her ask if God would allow grandpa to play poker in heaven. Her answer was, "Of course not. God does not allow card playing in heaven." (Grandma always hated grandpa's card playing and everyone knew it, especially grandpa.)

Mary was very sad about this and replied, "Oh, grandma, how too bad! That is what grandpa used to like to do best."

Later my wife and I were discussing the conversation. Do you think grandma was right to answer Mary as she did? — Q. Q.

Dear Q. Q.: No. The child was searching for reassurance that her grandpa was happy in heaven. It was not necessary for grandma to give her a small lecture on the moral aspect of card playing. If the child should bring up the subject again tell her no one knows for sure what goes on in heaven — the very best a person can do is guess. And your guess is that grandpa is up there with aces back to back.

Dear Ann Landers: A great deal has been said to unwed mothers, but one seldom hears or reads anything directed to unwed fathers. Why? After all, it is the male who carries the seed of life. Does it not then seem logical that he be held accountable for his behavior?

I have three sons, two in their teens, and I have made it clear to all three boys that if they get a girl in trouble they are going to marry her — regardless. No red-eyed miss is going to come to THIS house with her father at her side demanding that my son do the right thing. I wish you'd discuss this in your column, Ann Landers. It's a subject that needs airing. — MOTHER OF THREE

Dear Mother: I agree — young men should be taught that they have a responsibility toward the girls they date. Most boys, unfortunately, think they are entitled to everything that is offered plus whatever they can talk a girl into.

On the other hand, I don't believe a forced marriage solves any problems. An unwilling groom makes a poor husband and a worse father.

Dear Ann Landers: I have been married less than a year to a man who has many fine qualities, but — he is an accomplished check dodger.

Whenever we are out with another couple, Norman manages to head for the men's room when he sees the waiter coming with the check. If his timing is poor and he is trapped at the table, he has a knack for looking the other way, or he is so slow about getting out his wallet that someone else pays. I hate for him to be a sponger and wonder why his friends let him get away with it. How can I put an end to it without hitting him head on? — EMBARRASSED WIFE

Dear Wife: Since Norman seems to have an impediment in his reach, take matters into your own hands. Keep track of whose turn it is to pay and when it is Norman's turn, take the check from the waiter and hand it to him.

Reading in Jail Gets Closer Watch

WATERLOO, Iowa (AP) — Girlie magazines are still prohibited reading for inmates of the Linn County jail. Sheriff Walter Grant restated the policy after a women member of a grand jury expressed shock at finding a girlie magazine in the jail. Grant said prisoners' reading material will be watched more closely.

Although Nevada is one of the nation's least populated states, its rate of population growth is greatest of any state, according to the Census Bureau. Between 1960 and 1965, the population increased 54.2 per cent, to 440,000 persons. Arizona's rate is second, 23.5 per cent from 1960 to 1965.

Vietnam's Police Leader Is Product of the Times

EDITOR'S NOTE—In the midst of the Tet offensive AP photographer Edward T. Adams made a picture that gave millions of people around the world an insight into the grimness of the Vietnam war. It showed Saigon's national police chief, Nguyen Ngoc Loan, firing his pistol at a Viet Cong suspect. Since that time Adams has traveled extensively with Loan and seen firsthand some of the facets of his nature.

By EDWARD T. ADAMS Associated Press Photographer SAIGON (AP) — The chief of South Vietnam's national police, Nguyen Ngoc Loan, is one of the country's most controversial leaders.

The Viet Cong hate him, and so do others not associated with the Communist-led movement. He is a hero to the men who work under him, and to not a few admirers of efficiency. To them, charges of ruthlessness are offset by the dangers that plague the government Brig. Gen. Loan serves.

When I first came upon Loan, two months ago, he was firing at the head of a man in a plaid shirt.

The general had appeared suddenly that morning near An Quang Pagoda. Saigon was reeling under the onslaught of the Tet offensive. The man in the plaid shirt had just been captured. Loan executed him in a split second.

My first impression was that the thin-faced Loan was a cold, callous killer. Since then, I have traveled for days across the country with him.

He is a product of modern Vietnam and his time.

Many think he represents the worst in Vietnam. He has been criticized severely by some American and Vietnamese officials and by some Vietnamese politicians. He has been accused of using "Hitler" tactics, illegal arrests, torture and police-state methods.

He usually participates personally in the arrest of important political figures, often brandishing a weapon and shouting or bullying down any opposition.

When Nguyen Cao Ky maneuvered the generals against Nguyen Khanh in 1965, Loan was at his side, first as deputy, then as chief of military intelligence. When Ky was premier, Loan was his chief weapon against rebellious Buddhists.

Last July, when a national assembly was voting whether to allow Nguyen Van Thieu and Ky to run for president and vice president, Loan and several armed henchmen made their way to the balcony to glare at members as the vote was taken. The vote went the way Loan wanted.

Not only dissident politicians and shaven-headed Buddhists fear Loan. Mop-haired students stay out of his way as well. Recently Loan was seen driving a barber around Saigon in his jeep. When they spotted a long-haired "cowboy," the jeep would come to a screeching halt and the barber would give the cowboy a forceful haircut.

At the same time, Loan can be warm and generous. He demonstrates a fervent loyalty to his men and his country.

During the Tet fighting Loan was repeatedly out in front, leading his police in efforts to wipe out Viet Cong who had invaded the capital. He was wounded slightly three times.

"His men believe that he can walk on water and is bulletproof," said a U.S. police adviser who has worked closely with Loan for two years. "Loan has three qualities which are needed for leadership. He is positive, efficient and realistic."

As for the curbside execution and the publicity that followed, he recalls, "Many men were getting killed and wounded and I had many things on my mind at the time. I am a military man and not a politician. The picture was just an unfortunate situation."

Vietnamese officials said the victim of the execution was identified by another Viet Cong prisoner as a man named Nguyen Tan Dat alias Hoan Son, the leader of a Viet Cong sapper unit. They said he was captured near the pagoda, firing out of a second-story window at firemen trying to halt a blaze set by the Viet Cong. He killed a policeman who attempted to capture him, they said, and when seized and questioned, he spat in the face of the interrogating officer. He was taken around a corner where he was met by Loan.

Now Possible To Shrink Painful Hemorrhoids

And Promptly Stop The Itching, Relieve Pain In Most Cases.

New York, N.Y. (Special): Science has found a medication with the ability, in most cases — to promptly stop itching, relieve pain and actually shrink hemorrhoids. Tests by doctors proved that in case after case, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction of the inflamed hemorrhoids took place. The secret is Preparation H®. There's no other formula like it! Preparation H also soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.

Hold Memorial Marches

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thousands of Negroes and whites took part Sunday in Missouri and Kansas memorial marches for the slain Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., and for the most part the ceremonies were peaceful.

About 10,000 persons assembled at the Liberty Memorial Mall in Kansas City, some weeping but most silent as city officials, clergymen and civil rights spokesmen praised King. Said John Wesson, acting chairman of the Kansas City chapter of the Congress of Racial Equality:

"He died fighting not only for the black men in Memphis but for the demagogues and racists, that this be a much better land tomorrow."

A more militant note was sounded by the Rev. A. L. Johnson, president of the Council for United Action, who said:

"Too long the Negro has been afraid to die. We should call upon the Negroes not to be afraid to march, sit in or to lose their lives."

"Do not call on the Negro to be quiet. Call on the white community to do something about the racial situation."

Some youths forced their way into a Kansas City movie theater after the ceremony, but police soon removed them.

A three-hour rally at McAdams Park in Wichita, attended by more than 1,000 persons, heard speakers with divergent views. Keynote speaker was Mrs. Jo Gardenhire, who said that all the talk of nonviolence was being directed at the black community.

"Martin Luther King was one of the few black men left in America who had any faith left in the white community," she said. "All this talk of nonviolence is directed at the black community. Go preach your message of nonviolence at the source."

One unidentified young member of the crowd was heard to say: "We can't wait until all black leaders are dead. I say that when a white man puts a bullet in you, get a pistol and put a bullet in him."

Chester I. Lewis, president of the Wichita chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, which sponsored the rally, said he no longer would be active in the civil rights movement after June.

"If the power structure downtown thinks I'm bad, wait until they see some of the cats they're going to be dealing with now," he said.

Lewis charged that King had been the Negro most hated by white people in the United States. He termed eulogies by whites "phony" and "hypocritical."

In Kansas City, Kan., about 5,000 persons participated in a memorial at a street intersection. Afterward several windows were broken in the business district, and police turned were broken in the business district, and police turned youngsters trying to raid a drug store.

A crowd estimated at up to 35,000 persons marched from Gateway Arch to Forest Park in St. Louis. A hearse carried an empty coffin symbolizing the fallen civil rights leader.

The Rev. Vinton R. Anderson of St. Paul AME Church told the St. Louis crowd:

"Today another king comes to our city—our Martin Luther King. He comes clothed in immortality, to confront our consciences, to show us the more excellent way to live."

St. Louis police reported a few windows broken, but nobody was arrested.

About 1,000 assembled at the Kansas Statehouse in Topeka for a program which included brief remarks by Gov. Robert Docking.

The governor said the murder of King apparently was the act of one man and added:

"We must not seek to condemn men of one race or another. And upon reflection, we should realize that it was an act that will be on the conscience

Relative Quiet In Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — U.S. Army troops imposed relative quiet today on this city following a weekend of looting and arson by Negroes. Authorities said the violence tapered off sharply by Sunday night.

The disorders which started Saturday night in Negro areas resulted in four deaths, 300 injuries, 1,351 arrests and 420 fires. President Johnson, upon request of Gov. Spiro T. Agnew, ordered 1,900 troops from the 18th Corps Airborne Artillery into the city Sunday night to augment state police and 5,500 Maryland National Guardsmen.

Agnew placed the city under martial law Saturday night five hours after rioting broke out. Looting and arson have been casual and sporadic since, flaring up anew on a clear and pleasant Palm Sunday.

Stores hit by looting ranged from a large chain department store to the smallest corner grocery. The festive mood of the looters Saturday changed Sunday as troops began to arrest those violating a 4 p.m. curfew. Courts were clogged with curfew violators.

Gen. George M. Gelston, adjutant general of Maryland, said he could not believe that the violence in Baltimore was spontaneous. He did not elaborate.

Mayor Thomas J. D'Alesandro III said most rioters and looters seemed to be in their teens. He estimated those involved in disorders at no more than 3,000, which he said compares well to the city's near one-million population.

of all men for many years to come."

The Rev. E. B. Hicks of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies told the Topeka program, "One bullet will not stop a move for human dignity."

Another clergyman, the Rev. Austin Harrold of Lane Chapel C.M.E. Church in Topeka, urged everyone to declare Tuesday a holiday for King's funeral. Church sponsors of the program, however, disavowed the idea.

In Atchison, Kan., some 600 persons marched silently to the campus of St. Benedict's College for a memorial service.

The Rev. Harry L. Smith of Ebenezer Baptist Church told the Atchison program that King "has written freedom in letters too large to ever be covered again with a cloak of prejudice and greed."

Violence Dominates Broadcasts

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The death of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and the violence and apprehension that flared after his assassination dominated broadcast coverage over the weekend.

Amid all the tensions, the television broadcasters handled the tragedy and the racial disturbances in responsible fashion, without adding fuel to feed hot tempers.

There were reports of memorial programs, of speeches, and, of course, the racial strife that dominated all the regular news programs. The major networks handled the situation with a flexibility and a concern for peoples' reactions.

There were many last-minute changes—and there probably will be more in the early part of this week. NBC's Sunday "Meet the Press" was an interview with Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark on the King death instead of a talk with the British chancellor of the exchequer. Its regular "Vietnam: The War This Week" gave way to a news program concerned primarily with matters connected with the King murder.

One of the most impressive yet simplest programs was CBS's "Some Friends of Martin Luther King" Sunday afternoon. It was an informal session among associates, aides and admirers of the slain civil rights leader who reminisced warmly about the man and his character.

"PBL" the Sunday night educational network program devoted almost all of its time to King and his career in a documentary it had developed for use in connection with his proposed Washington march.

Kubrick Gains Fame With Film

By BOB THOMAS

AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sel-dom since "Citizen Kane" has a major film been so identified as the work of one man as has "2001: A Space Odyssey." To allay any doubt about who is responsible, the name of Stanley Kubrick appears repeatedly in the credits.

Kubrick rose fast in the film world. As the result of his direction of a quickie crime movie, "The Killing," he caught the attention of Kirk Douglas. Kubrick directed the actor in a haunting antiwar film, "Paths of Glory," and a pretentious, unrealized epic, "Spartacus."

The director then dipped into black comedy with a somewhat censored "Lolita" imagine if it were filmed today and the wild, wooly "Dr. Strangelove."

Next Kubrick was given virtual carte blanc by MGM to create the definitive space epic. He worked at his own pace. When I visited England in early summer of 1966, Keir Dullea and Gary Lockwood were finishing their starring roles. Not until this month was "2001: A Space Odyssey" premiered in New York and Hollywood. The reported cost: $9 million, more than $2 million over budget.

From a purely technical standpoint, the expense and the delay seem worth it. Never have space travel and the magnificence of space been portrayed with such convincing detail as in this Cinerama film.

But in other respects, "2001" is a maddening riddle. One insider said at the premier: "I've seen it three times, and I still don't know what it's all about." Most of the other first-nighters were equally puzzled.

The film opens with a sequence entitled "The Origin of Man." Groups of primates (Midgets in monkey suits) scrounge for food, then show the first signs of aggression by fusing over the use of a water hole. In time a monolithic black slab appears out of the earth. The monkeys finger it with wonder, then their puzzlement is nothing to the filmgoer's as this wellformed slab recurs in the film, usually with frightening results.

Obviously the monolith is a symbol. But of what? Moral force? Kubrick doesn't take us into his confidence.

In space "2001" flies best. The milk-white interiors of the crafts, the permanent weightlessness, the cool precision of the computer-brains — these elements combine to depict space adventure in the next century with remarkable reality.

Six Persons Die In Fire at Apartment

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Six persons, including members of three generations from a single family, died early Sunday when fire swept an apartment building on the east side.

Dead are Mrs. Ethel Young, 66, manager of the building; Clyde Young, 47, her husband; Marion N. Taylor, 47, Mrs. Young's son visiting from Wichita; Robert Taylor, 9, Mrs. Young's grandson and son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Taylor who escaped the building. All the victims but Mrs. Young were found in their beds.

Cause of the blaze, worst death toll in a residential fire here in 22 years, was not known. Firemen said the fire ap-postponed until Wednesday. ABC also postponed its special Wayne Newton program until Wednesday.

All networks resumed regular programming during the Sunday night prime-time hours.

MODERN HEALTH By Carl J. Hamilton, D. C. THE NEXT MOVE

Untold thousands of people throughout the world live a life of misery because nothing can be done to relieve the unhealthy conditions, which have beset their bodies. Symptoms prevail, in spite of repeated treatments of one kind or another.

Those sufferers know that good health results when all parts of the body are functioning normally, but they can find nothing which restores that normal function.

A simple, wise move could bring an end to a vast majority of the suffering the people of the world endure. In many cases, it's simply a matter of enlightenment. They just do not know of the science of chiropractic and the principle of adjusting the body's nervous system so the body can yield to nature's healing from within.

In many, many cases, a scientific chiropractic examination followed by gentle, competent chiropractic adjustments can relieve nerve pressures which interfere with nature's proper function. By correcting the cause of the disorder, chiropractic makes it possible for nature to heal the affected parts by restoring normal nerve power.

Radiant health can result from one simple, wise move to chiropractic care.

Four Die In Mishaps In State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four persons died in a three-car collision Sunday as Missouri highways took a toll of 11 lives over the weekend.

Three of the dead in the multiple-fatality accident included Jackie R. Dennis, 20, of Aberdeen, Md., and his twin nine-month-old daughters, Donna Ann and Danna Marie. Also dead in that crash was Mrs. Dorothy Dale, 35, of Winfield, Mo. The accident occurred 15 miles south of Fredericktown on U.S. 67.

Berniece Nickum, 51, Kansas City, was killed late Sunday night when her car was struck by a speeding car being chased by police.

Another Sunday death was that of Charles L. Larabee, 30, of Kansas City, Kan. He died in the collision of two cars on the U.S. 71 bypass nine miles north of Harrisonville.

The other dead: Leo Proffer, 52, St. Louis; two-car accident at the intersection of U.S. 60 and Missouri 25 at Dexter Friday night.

Janice Kay Taylor, 18, Henley, Mo.; the car in which she was riding ran off Cole County Route H near Brazito and overturned Saturday night.

Harold L. Shryer, 27, Blue Springs; gasoline truck he was driving overturned and exploded on Missouri 7 one mile south of Blue Springs Saturday night.

Frank Bricker, 30, St. Louis County; the car in which he was riding went out of control near the Bowles Avenue exit on U.S. 66 and struck a highway sign Saturday.

Cletus Keller, 30, Perryville; the car in which he was a passenger ran off Missouri 25 one mile south of Dutchtown in Cape Girardeau County and overturned Saturday.

Says Days Of Looting Are Over

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Authorities said today they believe three days of arson and looting in Pittsburgh's Hill District has been brought under control, but 3,000 National Guardsmen and 1,000 city and state police remained on duty in the Negro neighborhood.

"I would say the situation is under control," said City Safety Director David W. Craig at a news conference held at dawn. "But as to its permanency, I will have to make a decision on that later in the day."

The wave of fire bombings, window smashings and looting broke out Friday night following the Memphis assassination of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. But it was not until Sunday that the National Guard and state troopers were moved into the Hill District to reinforce Pittsburgh police.

Both Craig and Lt. Col. Joseph Dussia, deputy commissioner of state police, pointed out that there had been relative calm in the predawn hours today.

Craig said the violence followed a "pattern of individually inclined hoodlums." He said there was no indication of prodding by agitators or outside organizations.

Earlier in the night, gangs of vandals pitched firebombs and stormed liquor stores. A lumber yard burned down in the Strip District, adjacent to the troubled Hill District.

Ratcliff Files For Office Of State Treasurer

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — James E. (Jim) Ratcliff of Kansas City filed today for the Democratic nomination for state treasurer.

He is a native of Perry County, Missouri, and received his education in St. Louis county. He is a former Jackson County Civil Defense Director and former county land commissioner.

William E. Robinson of Jefferson City and L. E. Morris of Jefferson City also are seeking the Democratic nomination.

Ratcliff has held various political jobs in Jackson County and Kansas City for about 25 years.

He resigned as Jackson County Civil Defense administrator in June 1967 after a county court investigation into allegedly missing civil defense equipment valued in the thousands of dollars. A federal grand jury last month refused to bring any indictments after the government sought action against Ratcliff and another man on what the government said was false and fraudulent statements concerning three fork lifts obtained from the State Agency for Surplus Property at Jefferson City to be used for Civil Defense.

In Saigon, government sources said South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Van Loc has signed a decree raising the draft age from 33 to 40 and recalling older veterans to military service. This appeared to be the first step in the general mobilization promised by President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Even before pledging general mobilization if necessary, Thieu had said about 135,000 men would be added to South Vietnam's regional and popular forces by mid-1968.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland, commander of U.S. forces in Vietnam, met in Washington with President Johnson over the weekend and said in a public statement: "Militarily we have never been in better relative position in South Vietnam."

Westmoreland will leave his Vietnam command by July to become Army chief of staff. Government officials in Washington said he and Johnson agreed on Westmoreland's successor in Saigon and the choice will be announced soon.

Murder Trial Of St. Louis Man Begins

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—The first-degree murder trial of Barton Fish, charged with the beating death of a prominent St. Louis attorney, opened today before Circuit Judge James Lenfestey.

The lean, 24-year-old carnival worker is accused in the slaying of Anheuser-Busch Inc. National Labor Relations Director William Guffey, 57, at a plush motel here last Oct. 24.

Attention centered around statements made to police by Fish following the arrest of him and his plump 20-year-old wife, Judy, at their home in Wewoka, Okla., on Oct. 30. She was later freed.

Judge Lenfestey said he would permit the statements to be entered as evidence. Prosecutors indicated they would be the key to the state's case.

Police claim the Fish couple was seen with Guffey, who made frequent business trips to Tampa, at a night club the night before his body was discovered by a maid in his motel room.

Police Capt. C. F. Renfro said robbery was the motive for the slaying. Guffey's billfold, containing credit cards and about $400, was missing. The victim was found in a bed fully clothed. One side of his head had been bashed in by a blunt object.

Mrs. McCarthy Will Deliver Main Talk

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Mrs. Abigail McCarthy, wife of Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., will speak April 18 at a Vietnam information conference (in World War II Memorial Building) in Kansas City. She will discuss the historical background of this nation's involvement in Vietnam.

The conference is a day-long affair with Mrs. McCarthy speaking in the morning. A panel including David Wurfel, head of Asian studies at the University of Missouri Political Science Department, will answer questions during the afternoon.

The sponsoring group is approximately 200 women claiming various religious backgrounds and attitudes on America's involvement in Vietnam.

Marvin Harvey, 2508 North Woodlawn Drive, reported to police an attempted burglary at his home sometime Sunday. On returning to his home about 9:45 p.m. Sunday he found the front storm door damaged, a front window broken and a screen on the northeast corner of the residence cut.

Entrance to the home was not gained, but damage was estimated at $45.

Police found a window at the Universal Construction Co., in the 500 block on East Third Street broken out Sunday afternoon. The building is owned by Jay Lazerson, who was notified of the vandalism.

According to police, glass from a broken beer bottle was found on the window sill. There was no sign of an attempted break-in.

With the coming of spring and the curiosity of youngsters, police received a call to the 500 block on South Barrett, about 2:40 p.m. Sunday of children pulling up flowers.

Police found the children and gave them a talking to and sent them home.

The Osage Building Supply Co., 2400 Clinton Road, was found broken into by Douglas Groom, the manager, Sunday morning. An inside door had been pushed in, according to the police report.

Entrance was made through an unlocked door, and the inner door facing was splintered. A hammer was used to break into a soda pop machine and the change box taken out, from which about $5 was obtained.

While ransacking the drawers in another room, the person or persons drank two bottles of pop.

Sedalia Police reported Monday that the Cooke Sales and Service, East Highway 50, was broken into during the night.

According to the report, entry was gained by breaking a window. A desk was ransacked and 25 ballpoint pens were taken. The burglar apparently left by a door which had been left open.

Washington Mayor Walter E. Washington announced a series of emergency measures to "meet the human needs." Long lines formed outside the few open supermarkets and community groups collected food for meals and tried to find ways to provide cash for families left penniless by the disaster.

The violence left six dead and the death toll may rise to eight if two other deaths are ruled riot-connected. Almost 1,000 persons were injured, more than 4,000 were arrested and more than 750 fires were set.

Residents of Chicago, where nine persons died in a wave of violence, burning and looting, also tried to resume normal life. More than 300 persons were homeless, however, and a serious food shortage was expected because stores in the riot area had been either stripped by looters or closed and boarded up.

Detroit, where two persons were killed in violence Thursday and Friday, remained calm, but guardsmen continued to patrol the streets and an 8 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew was still in effect.

In New York City, both Harlem and the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn—both predominantly Negro—were quiet, following looting Friday night.

Elsewhere in the country, violence flared sporadically. Firemen in Joliet, Ill., were hampered by Negroes as they tried to battle a series of blazes.

A block-long complex of three warehouses was burned to the ground. An 8 p.m. to 5:30 a.m. curfew was imposed for a second night.

Violence and occasional clashes between police and Negroes occurred in Des Moines, Iowa, scene of a peaceful memorial march for King early Sunday. Police said at least six fires had been started, windows were broken and cars damaged by thrown bricks.

Roving bands of Negroes in Wilmington, N.C. wrecked several business sections, tossing rocks and bottles through store windows. Some 750 National Guardsmen patrolled the streets and Gov. Dan Moore mobilized an additional 1,000 for possible duty.

Memphis, Tenn., Tallahassee, Fla. and Minneapolis, all of which had one death in the wake of King's killing, were reported quiet.

28 Cars of Freight Train Are Derailed

CENTERVILLE, Kan. (AP)—Twenty-eight cars of a south-bound Katy Railroad freight train were derailed at Centerville shortly after midnight today.

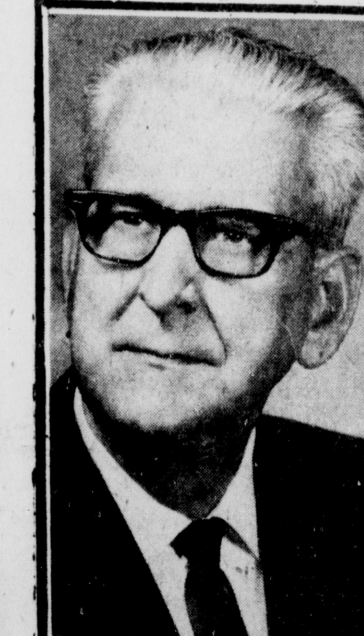

There were no injuries, but a grain elevator which was being repaired after a similar accident Dec. 26 again was damaged.

Mrs. Marie Stiffler, wife of the elevator owner, W. M. Stiffler, said two of the derailed cars hit the elevator — one winding up in the section under repair—and that another car fell on a small building near the company office. The smaller building contained tools and chemicals, she said.

Centerville is in Linn County, about 70 miles from Kansas City. Railroad officials said 13 of the cars were loaded. They said cause of the derailment has not been established.

A wrecker crew was dispatched from Parsons and the line was expected to be reopened late today.

Twenty-two cars were derailed in the December accident.

GOOD FARMING with Lloyd Lewellen

Pettis County
Farm Management Agent

Springtime creates a special need for financial resources. Fertilizer, seed, herbicides, tractor fuel, and many other inputs are necessary to get the farming season under way. Adequate operating funds are essential in carrying on a successful farming operation.

I'd like to talk about another phase of farm financing, the dollars you have "tied up" in land, buildings, machinery, breeding livestock and other longer-term investments. These demands for investment capital are going up year after year. About 200 cooperators in the Missouri farm record program in 1966 reported an average investment of $171,000 per farm with about 69 per cent of the total in land and buildings.

Many farmers say that the most troublesome questions in farm financing are related to investment decisions. Every new investment brings associated annual costs, such as interest, depreciating, insurance and taxes, which go on year after year, regardless of the use made of the resource acquired. If the money is borrowed, cash flow in the farm business may be influenced greatly by demands for principal repayments.

Since many thousands of dollars may be required for a single investment in land, buildings, or a major piece of machinery, one should carefully analyze the economic consequences of the capital commitment before it is made. A good way to start is to ask yourself a series of questions about the proposed investment, such as the following:

Will it pay? Will it generate enough extra income to pay the annual fixed and operating costs associated with it and to cover the repayment of any borrowed funds?

How much total capital is necessary? Will this investment create a need for additional capital to make the facility workable and profitable?

What is the opportunity cost for this use of your capital? In other words, what would the same dollars earn if invested in the most profitable way, either within or outside the farm business.

How flexible is this use of capital? If changes become necessary in your operation, how easily and quickly can this investment be liquidated, converted to cash, and at how much sacrifice in reduced value?

What is the rate of turnover on the investment? How quickly and how frequently will additional income accrue?

How much risk and uncertainty are involved in the investment, in comparison with other uses for the capital? Are the prospective earnings sufficient to allow for these eventualities?

There are only a few of the kinds of questions which may reveal a need for further analysis. Special budgets and other analytical "tools" have been developed to aid in analyzing the wisdom of such investment decisions.

MINOR ELEMENTS IN SOILS

A lot of interest has been generated on the subject of micro-nutrients, or minor elements and their effect on crop yields. As a result, questions come up concerning their use on Missouri soils.

Generally speaking, micro-nutrients are not a major problem in Missouri. To date, widespread deficiencies have not been found in the state. Some have been identified, but usually the areas involved consist of relatively small spots. Based on what we now know, there is no reason for panic on the subject. You may have a problem, if so, it will likely show up as spots within a field. You probably won't lose an entire 40 acre field of corn because of a micro-nutrient problem. It is a good idea to watch all crops carefully throughout the growing season. If problems appear steps should be taken to determine the cause. Weather damage, disease, insects and herbicide damage can all cause problems that sometimes resemble micro-nutrient deficiencies. Thus, it becomes necessary to eliminate all these possibilities.

The elements we commonly refer to as minor or micro-nutrients include boron, zinc, molybdenum, iron, manganese, and copper. Sometimes magnesium is included in the list. Generally speaking, the situation can be summed up about as follows:

Boron deficiencies are rather common on alfalfa throughout the state. The problem shows up on all soils where alfalfa is grown, particularly during dry weather. For this reason, boron is recommended for alfalfa at a rate of three pounds per acre. Problems have not been identified in corn or soybeans.

Cotton is also a boron sensitive crop and problems may occur, but they are not general.

Zinc deficiencies on corn have been found, but they are not widespread. For the most part, they occur where subsoil has been exposed by land leveling, construction of terrace channels, or on severely eroded areas where subsoil has been exposed. Peat soils are also subject to zinc shortages. Corn is the only crop on which confirmed cases of zinc deficiencies have been reported.

Molybdenum deficiencies have been identified in soybeans growing on extremely acid soils. Problems have not been reported on other crops. An application of limestone will normally correct the deficiency in beans, and the use of lime on acid soils is a good way to avoid the problem.

A few magnesium problems have occurred in sandy alluvial soils. A standard soil test includes a test for magnesium and when test results are followed, deficiencies should not occur.

As far as manganese and iron are concerned, shortages have not been identified. In fact, on acid soils we are likely to have too much of these elements.

Thus, you can see that the subject is complex. A reasonable approach seems to be not to panic and not to close your eyes. Watch all crops carefully for problems.

Feed Grain Sign-up Is Record One

With the record-breaking sign-up in the 1968 feed grain program, "farmers themselves have laid the foundation for strong markets during the coming months and throughout the next marketing year," Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman has said.

"In my opinion," he said, "American farmers this year have given a phenomenal expression of confidence in the workability and success of the feed grain program. Those growers who failed to participate in the 1967 program caused much of the margin of overproduction which depressed the major futures and cash markets."

Preliminary final reports on 1968 commodity program signups show a total of 1,497,724 farms signed up in the feed grain program, for diversion of 34,360,000 acres from production of corn and grain sorghum; 464,721 cotton farms signed up, with intended diversion of 3,263,000 acres

General Motors Facing Gigantic Moving Task

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — All the famed planning ability of General Motors will be needed for its upcoming moving job. Cars are produced by the millions, but a change of address is like no other.

After 40 years on Broadway here, in a dowdy building faced with Grecian columns and marbled and gilded inside, GM is preparing to move its executive offices to an efficient white marble tower on Fifth Avenue.

For the 3,300 workers on 25 floors of the Broadway building, the current preparations focus on "purging the files," tossing out papers so old they are bound by common pins instead of staples. It's the same problem individuals face—and often fail—when moving. GM isn't likely to fail.

The nation's biggest automaker has another advantage over ordinary beings. It has money and it can go first class, so all the furniture is being left behind—desks, rugs, file cabinets, wastebaskets, coat racks.

Appraisers recently walked through the building at night, seemingly talking to themselves but really speaking into tape recorders that later will be transcribed. They identified each piece of furniture, priced it and left attached to it an identification number.

Now the GM people are considering what to do with the old but useful furniture—give it to from upland cotton production; and 837,057 wheat farms, with wheat allotments of 50.4 million acres, representing 85 per cent of the national allotment of 59.3 million acres.

In Pettis County, 1968 commodity program signups show: 1,130 farms signed up in the feed grain program, for diversion of 32,375 acres from production of corn and grain sorghum; and 903 wheat farms, with wheat allotments of 17,425 acres.

charity, for example, or sell it to dealers. The decision will be made soon, for the company must vacate this summer.

About five years ago GM began thinking about what it should do when its latest 10-year lease was up. A decision was reached against staying in the old building, mostly for reasons of efficiency and space.

By August 1964 an agreement was reached to move into a 50-story structure then being planned. Three months later the automaker bought one-half of the firm that will own the building, the Savoy-Fifth Avenue Corp.

A moving committee was formed with representatives from personnel, engineering and the comptroller's office. A coordinator was added. In recent months the committee has met two or three times a week.

Supplying them with information are various subcommittees which obtain facts, opinions and recommendations from department heads, each of which is provided with a plan of the floor their people will occupy.

As moving day nears, the GM people expect few personnel problems. The biggest one, they feel, is likely to be the adaptation to new surroundings, especially to new transportation.

Status hasn't intruded on plans. Although it is possible that some middle managers might not have the office they desire, everyone is bound to come out ahead, in the opinion of one member of the moving committee.

The reasons given: a brand new building, centrally air conditioned, soft wool carpets on 90 per cent of the floor space, plenty of windows, swift self service elevators, a cafeteria. In the old building carpets were not as common. Quarters sometimes were cramped. The cafeteria was across the street.

Campaign Post For Dr. Reed

Dr. Wallace Reed

True Davis, Democratic candidate for the United States Senate, has named Dr. Wallace S. Reed as state campaign chairman of the Doctors of Chiropractic Committee. Dr. Reed graduated from Missouri Chiropractic College in 1940 and has practiced in Warrensburg since 1953.

"True Davis is exceptionally qualified for the United States Senate, and it is a privilege to serve as his campaign chairman," Dr. Reed stated.

Dr. Reed is a member of the Missouri State Board of Chiropractic Examiners and was recently reappointed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes. He has served on the board since 1965.

He has been active in civic affairs and served as president of the Lions Club, commander of the American Legion, commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, chairman of the Citizens Committee and Red Cross chairman for Johnson County. He also serves on Selective Service Board No. 55. Dr. Reed and his wife, Mary Frances, reside in Warrensburg.

One of the important factors leading to the success of home fruit and vegetable plantings is proper use of fertilizers.

Let's consider fruit plantings first. With most tree fruits, use the following general fertilizer practices:

1. On trees planted this spring, do not use fertilizer. Soil which is of sufficient depth and suitable texture for fruit tree production will have adequate fertility. No amount of fertilizer will compensate for sufficient soil depth and suitable soil texture. Just be sure your young tree does not suffer from lack of moisture. On the other hand, don't drown the roots either.

Data on Fertilizer

2. Fertilizing trees after the first year, use the following: One pound of 12-12-12 fertilizer, or similar analysis, for each one inch of diameter of tree trunk one foot above ground. Apply the 12-12-12 in a 3 to 5 foot band under the drip line or outer hang of the branches.

3. Actual amounts of fertilizer to use can best be gauged by the terminal growth of the particular fruit crop. Each year check the terminal growth of your "bearing" fruit trees. Terminal growth is a brighter color and is found on the ends of the branches. It is the amount of the past year's growth.

Terminal growth should vary from 6 to 15 inches in length, on pears, plus, and cherries should be near the lower range; apples, peaches, and apricots near the higher range.

Growth below or above these limits indicate too little or too much nitrogen fertilizer. Adjust your fertilizer applications accordingly. And finally, make all fertilizer applications to tree fruits in early spring.

One word of caution. If you grow your tree fruits in your lawn area, and fertilize your lawn rather heavily, you will probably have sufficient fertilizer for your fruit trees. But check the terminal growth. This will tell you if your tree is receiving adequate fertilization.

The Best Time

And finally, delay second or late applications of nitrogen fertilizers to lawn areas under fruit trees until late September. This will avoid stimulation of fall growth on your trees and possible winter injury.

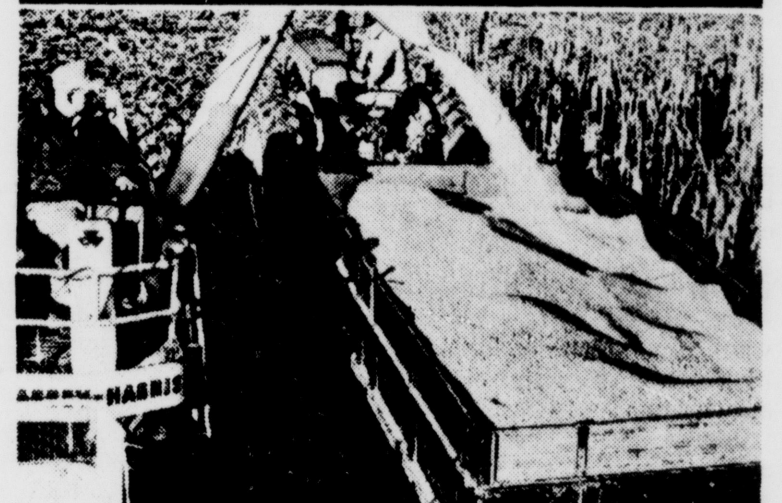

New strawberry plantings should be limited to bring the pH level in the range of 5.5 to 6.5. Many soils are already in this range. Then apply about 10 pounds of 8-24-8 or similar analysis fertilizer high in phosphate per 1,000 square feet of area. Work the lime (if needed) and 8-24-8 as deeply as possible into the soil.

Do not fertilize strawberry beds that will bear this year until after harvest. Then apply about 10 pounds of 8-24-8 or

Caught in the Middle

The middle class — the hardworking, consuming, saving, taxpaying middle class — is the strength of the nation, we are often reminded. That strength is much put upon these days.

A defendant in a criminal case, for instance, is better off being flat broke than having a small nest egg, two legal experts said recently.

According to Warren H. Lehman and Dallin H. Oaks, professors of law at Washington University and the University of Chicago respectively, the defense which the state can supply through its public defender system is better than that which a defendant in the lower middle class can afford.

The indigent defendant also has the advantage of having the costs of his appeals paid for by the state, whereas the defendant with limited funds may be forced to be content with an adverse lower court decision.

Something similar is true in regard to medical costs today. Thanks to Medicare, the poor are enjoying health care they have long deserved and have long been denied. But it is the middle class which is feeling the effects of the general rise in doctors' fees, which coincided with the advent of Medicare.

None of this is going to make poverty attractive or discourage people from trying to better themselves. What it could do, however, is spur demands that Medicare, or "Legalaid," or perhaps even government-provided automobile insurance or home mortgages be made available to all the people.

For if no person should be denied the benefits of society because he has no money, neither should anyone be denied those benefits because he has just a little money. And it follows logically that if no one should be penalized because he has just a little money, neither should anyone be penalized because he has a little bit more than just a little.

Some will call it socialism; some will call it merely inevitable. It depends on how it is handled and how far it is allowed to go. Call it social equality insurance. But as with any kind of insurance, whether privately run or government-run, someone ultimately has to pay the bill.

Which brings us back to the middle class.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

LBJ, Bobby Meet Without Fireworks

By DREW PEARSON and JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — High drama swirled publicly around the White House last week. High drama also moved inside the White House as the President held a meeting with the brother of the late President who has publicly labeled him a national disaster; then with the Vice President who may oppose Bobby Kennedy; then with the Cabinet.

The meeting with Senator Kennedy and his adviser, Ted Sorensen, both entering by the side door, was without fireworks. The President had not been happy over Bobby's charge that he, Lyndon Johnson, had been responsible for dope addiction among students and for draft-card burnings. He had been hurt over Bobby's charge that he had torn the country to pieces.

But he did not say anything when Bobby entered. Instead, they sat down across the room from the President's desk, Bobby and Sorensen on the sofa which had been there since the days of JFK, the President in the big rocking chair which he has adopted ever since John F. Kennedy's death.

The President called for a map of North Vietnam and proceeded to brief the Senator on the bombing pause, explaining why he had aroused the wrath of Sen. Bill Fulbright, D-Ark., by continuing to bomb up to the 20th parallel.

He explained that Fulbright had been briefed by Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford on Sunday, before the President's fireside chat. Clifford had gone out to Fulbright's home to tell him exactly what was going to happen, and explain that bombing would have to continue along the supply routes into the southern corridor of North Vietnam, otherwise American troops would be endangered.

Fulbright had telephoned the President after the speech to congratulate him, but later blasted LBJ in the press, denouncing the bombing pause as a deceptive sham. The President seemed to think Fulbright had rejected the proposal on behalf of Ho Chi Minh, who later accepted it.

Johnson pointed out on the map the manner in which North Vietnamese supplies were coming down the long corridor adjacent to Laos, then slipping across the Laotian border to be smuggled into South Vietnam later.

"I got together with some of my best advisers, including Arthur Goldberg," the President said. "We figured we had to keep bombing this corridor. Clark Clifford has been working on this plan day and night. Nick Katzenbach urged that my speech not be in the form of an ultimatum. We are ready to follow up any overture."

He also showed Bobby that 78 per cent of North Vietnamese territory and 90 per cent of the population would be exempt from bombing, including the streets of Haiphong, which he said were now stacked with war supplies.

The President did most of the talking. Bobby did not interrupt. At the end of the briefing, the young candidate who had been trying to defeat the man who is now bowing out as President, asked the President what his political plans were.

The President made it clear that he was going to remain aloof from the political rivalries of the candidates — for the time being.

"I'm not interested in this job for the salary," he said. "Nor for the social activities."

There were a few more polite exchanges. Kennedy and Sorensen bowed out.

— HHH And LBJ —

A few minutes later, Vice President Humphrey came in. He and Johnson have become extremely close. Not always has it been this way. At first there were minor irritations between them. But the President has been increasingly grateful for Humphrey's devotion, especially recently when the going was rough. Last fall, the President had said in the presence of Mrs. Johnson, Secretary of State Rusk, and Humphrey that he was not going to run again, and that he considered retiring early to let Hubert take over so as to get a head start on the Presidency.

He added, however, that this would look like a deal, so instead he would throw his weight to Hubert to corral delegates at the Democratic National Convention.

With this background, the two men met last week. But now the President explained that he felt he must remain aloof from the political arena. It was best for national unity and the goal of peace.

It was not entirely a shock to the Vice President. He had an inkling of what was on the President's mind. Earlier he had known of his deep worry of disunity in the nation.

"The Board of Directors isn't satisfied with the management," the President had confided. "The shareholders aren't happy. I think I could get nominated. I think I could be re-elected. But what's the use of leading a country which is divided, where the Congress won't pass a tax bill, where we're facing devaluation of our currency, where white men are against black, the Irish against the Jews, and where the press distorts everything you do? If I recited the Lord's Prayer, Newsweek would say that I didn't do it right."

The Vice President knew how hard the President had worked, how hard he had tried to improve race relations, promote education, combat poverty, help improve the nation's health. He knew how many avenues he had explored for peace, how hard he had tried to cooperate with the Congress, how many times he had summoned Congressional groups and the Governors of states to the White House for conferences.

Letter to Editor

PHILIP H. ALLEN (2500 W. 11th)—Perhaps there is a time in every American's life when he feels that he would welcome the opportunity to talk with his fellow Americans — brother to brother. I must now take that opportunity.

Never before have I felt such disappointment at the events of the past few days, nor have I felt such hope toward the future.

An act of hate has left a most dedicated man dead, but he must not die in vain. Our past is gone, but not forgotten, and it is today that we must live, and for tomorrow we must plan. This wonderful country, for all of its self-inflicted degradation and shame, has now been given the opportunity to redeem itself. From these years of hate can come an eternity of love for one another. We should now see each man as a fellow human being and not as black or white. The color of a man's skin should mean no more to us than the difference in color of a person's hair. Knowing or even believing this fact is no longer enough. We must now accept it. Each and every American must privately talk with his God and ask for the grace of wisdom and acceptance. Then we must take upon our shoulders this responsibility and bear the burden of so long denying a fellow man the right to be just that, a fellow man.

Events have pushed us to the threshold of decision. We can no longer sit idly by and hope for the best. We can either love or hate — there is no other choice. If we only commit ourselves to what is just, we will be able, in a very short time, to hold our heads high and exclaim, "I am proud to be an American — very proud!"

The Fools Are NOT America

There is a fool in this country, it seems, for every stupidity.

There is a fool to shoot a man.

There is a fool to set a fire, loot a store.

There is a fool to hate a man for his color.

There is a fool to ignore injustice and prejudice.

The fools are NOT America.

For every fool there are thousands, even millions, who reject the fool and all his cruelty and stupidity.

America is not a fool.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Bequeathing Your Body

Since time immemorial, men have been making bequests of their money or other worldly possessions. But suddenly, just within the past few years, a new kind of bequest has come into being.

Today a person can bequeath not only his wealth but also various parts of his own body. This has

In matters of burial, the law has traditionally given consideration not only to the wishes of the deceased but also to the wishes of his surviving family. And even though the deceased may have wanted to donate all or part of his body, the widow or other relatives might well feel differently about it.

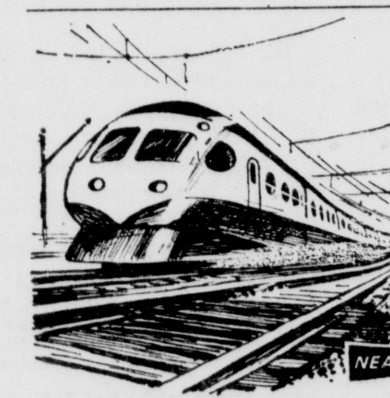

In many states, relatives do have a legal right to say no. The doctor who defies them, removing organs or tissue without their consent, may be exposing himself to a damage suit—and perhaps criminal liability too, for tampering with a dead body.

Even if the rights of relatives are in doubt, the mere delay caused by a dispute may make the whole question academic. For the transplantation of most bodily parts must be done swiftly, within minutes of death, to be successful.

To clear away these difficulties, a special committee has gone to work under the auspices of the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws. It is drawing up a model statute, to be recommended for adoption by the various state legislatures.

The committee is seeking to insure, to every person willing to be a donor, that his wishes will be carried out. It is seeking to devise a modern mechanism for a new kind of gift—and to transplant it into the body of the law.

Jefferson City, Mo. — A decision is expected this week on whether Missouri or the federal government will inspect the state's meat packing industry, a spokesman for Agriculture Commissioner Dexter D. Davis says.

Critics of an all-federal program in Missouri fear "unnecessary" closing of some 40 small meat packers as one consequence of what they call "creeping federalism."

The federal Wholesome Meat Act, recently made law, gives states two years to build their own meat inspection programs, or federal inspectors will step in. State standards must at least equal those of the U.S. government.

Missouri now has 30 state meat inspectors who have all been trained at federally inspected meat plants in Missouri by federal instructors at no state expense.

This constitutes the state's meat inspection program built in anticipation of federal meat legislation. It became law four months ago.

But, with only 30 inspectors, the state program is severely crippled. Davis has said he may abandon state inspection to Washington if he doesn't get money for more inspectors. The Agriculture Commissioner said he wanted to talk with Gov. Warren E. Hearnes before he reached a decision. The final decision rests with the Governor.

Davis asked the Missouri Legislature during the last special session for 110 inspectors at $500 per month per man. Action in the Senate gave the Agriculture Department 25 inspectors for fiscal year 1969, at about the present $350 per month per man.

Senate opinion feared eventual federal domination of state-operated meat inspection. "It is possible the Department did not adequately inform the Senate of the conditions," Frank Erickson, Agriculture press secretary says.

The Wholesome Meat Act provides for a state-federal partnership in meat inspection, the two partners splitting major costs down the middle.

"Our responsibility in the Agriculture Department," Erickson said, "is to assure the Senate that primary control of meat inspection will remain with the state" in his case.

But detailed rules and regulations for the partnership have not yet been announced from Washington, Erickson said.

That's one reason Dexter Davis was in Washington last week. He has been appointed to the 17-member Meat Inspection Advisory Committee created recently by Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman. The committee, which had its first meeting March 27, is to promote state-federal coordination in meat and meat products inspection.

Davis was expected to find out how the state-federal association is to work.

The shared burden could add 25 inspectors to the 1969 state staff. "That means the state program could get by for another year with a total of 50 inspectors, although we could not be as effective or grow as rapidly as we would like," Erickson said.

Missouri inspectors currently work in 54 meat packing plants scattered in the state's larger cities. The goal, Erickson says, is state inspection at 200 of Missouri's 534 plants.

The federal government already inspects meat in 56 state plants. Local city inspectors are in 96 plants.

Plans are near completion to begin inspection in many of Missouri's poultry plants, starting in St. Louis. A survey is now underway to see how many poultry inspectors and processors will be involved.

Erickson said the Department hopes, with federal cooperation, to have 100 inspectors at work in 1970.

"We fought like crazy for more inspectors for 1969," Erickson said, "because we feel the state, and not the federal government, is best equipped to control its own meat inspection."

Shampooing Will Help Seborrheic Dermatitis

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

Q—A dermatologist has prescribed Texacort for my seborrheic dermatitis. Will this scalp lotion cure it or just control it? What is the cause of this condition? Is it contagious? Will a mild hair rinse aggravate it?

A—Seborrheic dermatitis can be controlled rather than cured. It is caused by excessive oiliness of the skin. It is not contagious. A hair rinse should not aggravate it.

Q—What foods should I avoid and what medication should I use to control seborrhea?

A—For this condition some doctors recommend a diet that is low in fat and carbohydrate and high in protein with avoidance of chocolate and alcohol, but there is a growing belief among skin specialists that diet is not an important factor in control. You should shampoo from one to three times a week with an antidandruff shampoo. There are dozens of scalp lotions for the treatment of this disease. You may have to try several before you find one that help you. Even with the best of treatment flareups may occur.

Q—I have seborrhea on my scalp and parts of my face. Will getting a permanent wave aggravate it?

A—No.

Q—My husband has unsightly dandruff in his eyebrows. How can it be controlled?

A—Rubbing the affected parts with a 5 per cent sulphur, greasless ointment once or twice a day is an old standby remedy. A new product, bethamethasone valerate (Valisone Cream), which requires a prescription, has been found to give excellent results in about 90 per cent of those who have used it. It is colorless, greasless and odorless.

Q—What is Christian-Weber's disease? Is there a cure for it?

A—This is an inflammation of the fatty layer of tissue just beneath the skin. It is seen mostly in women who are between 20 and 40. It may occur in any part of the body but is most often seen in the legs, thighs, arms, abdomen and breasts. The involved areas are tender to touch. The acute inflammation is accompanied by chills and fever. The disease usually subsides spontaneously after several days but where healing takes place, depressed areas occur. Cortisone hastens recovery but does not always prevent the depressions, which may have to be replaced with grafts of normal skin.

Oswald: "I suppose that I have reached the age where it is time to start viewing some modern bidding tendencies with alarm."

Jim: "If you are going to blame the younger generation for bids such as West's weak take-out double of one diamond, you are getting old. Didn't people make weak take-out doubles 30 years ago?"

Oswald: "Yes, they did! And I've made my share. But in general my weak take-out doubles had more distribution to back them up than West's 4-4-3-2."

Jim: "This weak one really worked in unexpected fashion. If West had passed, South would have become declarer at three no-trump without any opposition. West would probably have opened his fourth best heart or spade and South would have had time to set up two heart tricks and make his three no-trump. However, the double and North's redouble gave East an opportunity to bid two clubs. He could have been doubled and set two tricks, but no one had a double and South arrived at the same three no-trump."

Oswald: "West opened the three of clubs, and if East had blindly played third hand high we would have had no column. The club suit would never come in, and South would make four no-trump. But East played his nine spot. South won with the queen to try to give the impression that he held king-queen-small instead of queen-jack-small. Then he led his deuce of hearts."

Jim: "The play might have worked, but West studied awhile and saw that South would almost surely run off nine tricks if he could get in one heart. West rose with the ace, played ace and another club, and East's club suit completed the job of beating the contract."

Oswald: "Nothing too brilliant, but as workmanlike an operation as possible."

QUICK QUIZ

Q—How keen is a dog's sense of hearing?

A—Tests show that dogs can tell apart sounds which are so close in pitch that the average human being is not able to tell the difference. Experiments conducted on dogs show that they can distinguish between musical notes one-quarter of a note apart.

Army Promoting Modern Image On College Campuses

By TOM TIEDE

NEA Staff Correspondent

FORT MONROE, Va.—(NEA)—There is a small sign on a barracks billboard here that reads: "In spite of the generals, things are looking up."

It's fitting.

Because this is the headquarters for the Army's bulky Reserve Officer Training Corps, and perhaps the most significant aspect of this controversial college program is that in spite of the generals, things are at least looking up.

For most of the lengthy history of ROTC, many Army generals have considered it a second-class means of producing second-class officers.

West Point brass once banded together to exclude reserve people from post cliques. Promotions were not easily granted to some ROTC grads. And college priority was so low that, as one fellow remembers, "we ranked somewhere between K-9 recruitment and the fund for the Pentagon Christmas party."

The generals' suspicion of campus military science resulted in years of underdeveloped ROTC classes, staffed with the deadwood of the service.

Thus occurred, perhaps justifiably, a cruel Army opinion which held that the only soldier lower than a second lieutenant was an ROTC second lieutenant.

Fortunately and finally, much of this rot is changing.

Compelled by need, enlightenment and the changing American campus, the Army has, of late, removed ROTC from its obscurity in the military basement.

Insiders agree it was just in time.

"We were heading for social extinction in the schools," admits one professor of military science. "Compulsory ROTC was being thrown out all over the country. And the next step would have threatened the entire program."

As it is, however, Army ROTC appears to be regaining lost ground in some areas. Though over-all enrollment is down, graduate numbers are up. And with units at 247 schools now, the Army is considering invitations from 100 others.

There are still problems, certainly. Some chronic. Eventually, all schools will doubtless have to abolish compulsory ROTC programs.

And student criticism is likely to get much, much worse before it gets even a little better.

But at least the Army is fighting back.

At Ohio State University, home of the largest Army ROTC school (4,800 students), Col. Arthur von Rohr says: "We aren't here to treat students like PFCs any longer. We are here to treat them like future officers."

At Washington State University, Col. James Osgard says: "Our staff is energetic and knowledgeable. Most of them have been to Vietnam. Our students can identify with them, believe them, and perhaps even imitate them."

At Hampton Institute, Col. Ernest Johnson says: "We are a predominately Negro here. So when a student wants to know, say, what it's like for a Negro officer, we tell them what it's like. We level with our young men."

Gone are some of the ridiculous tapestries of the old ROTC: students at many schools are marching less today and learning more. Gone also are some of the sophomoric rules ("On Fridays, cadets will wear full uniforms to all classes.")

And going, too, are some of the foggy, nervous, worthless teaching philosophies which once, as one man remembers,

"were based on the Boy Scout handbook."

In an eastern seaboard classroom recently, an ROTC student asked a captain instructor point blank about alleged American atrocities in Vietnam.

"They happen," the captain explained.

"Why?"

"No good reason, that's for sure."

"Did it happen in your platoon?"

"Yes, once."

"What did you do, sir?"

"Nothing. I didn't have time. The soldier who did it was killed on patrol, so I just let it drop. I didn't feel anybody could be helped by submitting a report. But I discussed it with my men and we had no more trouble."

Needless to say, this kind of candid, casual discussion is what Army ROTC students have clamored for years. Now, in some areas, they have it.

And they like it.

One indication of their appreciation is the emergence of extracurricular ROTC activities which rely solely on volunteer participation.

Ten years ago, says one major, "You couldn't have gotten ROTC volunteers for a weekend orgy. Today they are flocking to things like guerrilla training. They're even running around the hills playing war games."

The major is perhaps not entirely correct. The students are not "playing" anything. They are stone serious. And ROTC knows they are serious.

They are, as students never before were, planning for their future. If ROTC can help in such plans, fine. If it can't, then that's fine, too.

In brief, they'll follow the shortest road to the top.

For this reason, Army ROTC has begun to modify its approach to prospective lieutenants. Instead of going on about patriotism and pride, they are narrowing in on "job responsibilities" and "career opportunities."

No ROTC recruiter fails to tell a prospect that today ROTC students have, on the average, a higher grade point than non-ROTC students; that today there are 170 general officers who are ROTC graduates; or that today many industries will pay more to a qualified man who has ROTC leadership background.

Instead of waving flags at contemporary students, the Army trend is to stress the propaganda of "your future," to compete with industry for the brainpile, and to promote the idea of choice rather than confinement.

It's not a bad pitch, they think.

And it seems to be working, in spite of the generals, of course.

Civil Rights Leader Is Remembered in Services

By RAY KOHN
Associated Press Writer

Many thousands of Negroes and whites eulogized Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. at church services, outdoor observances and quiet marches in cities and towns across the nation Sunday.

The national day of mourning, as proclaimed by President Johnson, was noted around the world, including words by Pope Paul VI in Rome and soldiers gathered for a solemn service in a steel hut at Da Nang, Vietnam.

At Memphis, Tenn., where King was felled last Thursday by a sniper's bullet, the peaceful march he had planned for today was to be headed by aides and possibly his widow.

Pope Paul, while celebrating Palm Sunday Mass in St. Peter's Basilica, said of King, an exponent of nonviolence, "We shall associate his memory with that of the tragic story of the Passion of Christ."

U. N. Secretary-General U. Thant told some 2,500 persons at a memorial service in The Hague, the Netherlands: "I share the deep sense of shock with you."

Thousands of New Englanders took part in marches and services.

Boston University, where King earned his doctorate in theology, planned further memorial services for today and no classes Tuesday, when King will be buried in Atlanta.

Some 20,000 persons gathered in the Los Angeles Coliseum Sunday to do honor to the head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

New York City's Central Park was the scene of an interfaith memorial service, with some 12,000 Negroes and whites listening to eulogies by Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, Mayor John V. Lindsay, and civil rights leaders.

The Rev. Wyatt Walker, one of King's former aides, said, "In his memory today, take up the palm branch. We will open eyes blinded with hate and prejudice."

In strife-torn Washington, where looting and burning followed King's assassination, a special service was held at the Roman Catholic National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception. Bishop John Spence of the archdiocese of Washington, told about 3,000 persons that King was "a martyr, a man who died for the Christian precept of non-violence."

Bishop Spence urged Negroes to "cease your violence" and advised whites to work toward ending prejudice.

A spokesman for Coletta King, King's widow, said former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, visited her for about a half hour Sunday in Atlanta.

In Hollywood, Gregory Peck, president of the Motion Picture Academy's board of governors, said all four Negro entertainers who canceled Academy Award appearances because of King's death were expected to take part in the rescheduled ceremonies.

The Oscar presentations were postponed from tonight to Wednesday night.

The four who had withdrawn were Sidney Poitier, Sammy Davis Jr., Diahann Carroll and Louis Armstrong.

In sports, opening baseball games in both the National and American Leagues were postponed from Tuesday to Wednesday in deference to King's funeral. Play in the National Basketball Association playoffs resumes Wednesday night.

Award Promotion To an ROTC Cadet

Craig O. Griffith, Kansas State University ROTC cadet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard F. Griffith of Sedalia, has been promoted to the rank of Cadet Airman, according to Col. B. L. Ruggles, professor of aerospace studies at K-State.

Cadet Griffith earned this promotion because of his high academic standing and demonstrated proficiency in aerospace studies.

He is a freshman with a general major.

Army Is Ready With New Troops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army, which has thrown nearly 20,000 regular troops into the battle against riots in U.S. cities, has another 22,000 ready to go.

These comprise 11 brigades in varying states of alert, most prepared to move out on from one-hour notice, Pentagon sources said.

Some of them are specially organized provisional brigades made up of engineers, artillerymen and other combat and combat-support troops.

But, like infantrymen and paratroopers, they have received riot control training.

The sources said still more brigades are being formed in anticipation of possible need.

Air Force transports have been posted strategically around the country, awaiting call.

In this connection, no Air Reserve troop-carrier units have been called up or placed on extended training duty for the purpose.

However, the Air Force said some reserve volunteers have stepped forward to help out and a total of 96 Air Reserve C119 and C124 transport planes have been used in the emergency airlift of regular troops.

The Air Force said it was impossible to identify the units from which the reserve volunteers had come.

The Army already has called into use a brigade of soldiers whose normal mission is to serve as school troops for the training of new officers at Fort Benning, Ga.

So far, the army has committed, or moved into position to commit, seven brigades from Ft. Bragg, N.C.; Ft. Hood, Tex.; Ft. Carson, Colo., and Ft. Benning.

It also has brought into play a considerable part of an armored cavalry regiment, a ceremonial battalion, and a variety of military police, transportation and service units of battalion size.

If a visitor stands with his back to a fountain in Rome and throws a coin into it over his shoulder, he is said to be assured a return visit to the Eternal City.

Oklahoma Has Good Start For Third Title Effort

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG, Associated Press Sports Writer
Oklahoma State is off to an unbeaten start in quest of its third straight Big Eight baseball championship, and the most impressive factor for Coach Chet Bryan's club is a talented cast of newcomers.

Sophomore Mike Camp, 6-foot-4 right-hander with a powerful fast ball, pitched 9 1-3 innings of shutout ball in relief as OSU won the opener of a Saturday doubleheader at Iowa State 4-3 in 10 innings.

Steve Houck, a sophomore outfielder, belted a three-run home run to lead OSU's 22-4 avalanche victory in the second game. Another sophomore, Bob Richardson, was the winning pitcher in the series opener Friday, when catcher Bob Hudspeth, a junior college transfer, drove in four runs.

Bryan's veterans are looking good, too. Pitcher Bill Dobbs, winner in the final game, has a 2-0 record and three solid jobs. Shortstop Danny Thompson was 5-for-10 Saturday, third baseman Alan Johnson 4-for-8 and outfielder Wayne Weatherly 4-for-11. Outfielder Jim Hays, much improved over his part-time .104 mark of last year, belted three doubles.

Kansas State, Oklahoma and Missouri — in a triple tie at 2-1 after the opening weekend of the season — look like OSU's chief challengers. Colorado could be in this class if pitching ace Taylor Toomey regains his form. Colorado plays at OSU this Friday and Saturday, while Oklahoma is at K-State, Iowa State at Missouri and Kansas at Nebraska.

K-State's Van Bullock, a little left-hander, pitched a two-hitter while shortstop Joe Spurgeon made three excellent defensive plays and ripped a three-run triple during an eight-run second inning. The Wildcats won 10-2 at Lawrence.

K-State's Jim Brown stole second and home for the first run off KU starter Roger Jackson. Relief pitcher Richard Slicker homered for KU.

Colorado pitcher Lloyd Hutchinson belted a two-run homer in a six-run first inning and struck out nine in a 12-4 victory at Boulder, but Missouri came back to win the second game 7-3, taking the series. Jim Loving hit a three-run homer in the first inning for Mizzou, and later and Steve Lundholm and Rudy Stoupe also homered for the Tigers.

Mick Logue, Nebraska's sophomore right-hander, refused to crack with men on base and went all the way to a 2-1 victory at Nonan, preventing a series sweep by Oklahoma.

Dodgers May Open Season Themselves

By DICK COUCH, Associated Press Sports Writer
The Philadelphia Phillies were caught in a rundown between Walter O'Malley and Warren Giles today as the Los Angeles Dodgers considered opening the 1968 baseball season all by themselves.

Los Angeles owner O'Malley was to decide today whether or not to go ahead with Tuesday night's scheduled home opener against Philadelphia—a game the Phillies have refused to play.

The Dodgers were left holding the ball Sunday when the St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago White Sox pushed back their Tuesday openers one day, joining seven other major league clubs which had postponed opening home games in deference to the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King.

Funeral services for the slain civil rights leader will be held Tuesday in Atlanta.

National League President Giles left it up to the Dodgers, as the home club, to decide whether to go through with their game.

John Quinn, the Phillies' general manager, said earlier his club would not take the field at Los Angeles Tuesday night, at the risk of a possible forfeit and fine—because of the King funeral that afternoon.

The other opening games in each league, including the presidential fixture at Washington, all were set for Wednesday.

President Johnson was expected to miss the Senators' debut against the Minnesota Twins—one of five afternoon openers in the American League. The White Sox entertain Cleveland, Boston's defending champions are at Detroit, the new Oakland Athletics at Baltimore and California at New York in other AL inaugurals.

The Chicago Cubs visit Cincinnati and the New York Mets are at San Francisco in National League afternoon games. Pittsburgh is at Houston and Atlanta at St. Louis under the lights.

While O'Malley and Bavaresi pondered the possibility of opening the season without an opponent, LA Manager Walter Alston checked into an Inglewood, Calif., hospital Sunday for treatment of a kidney stone and the Dodgers whipped Cleveland 5-1 in the lone exhibition finale.

All the other exhibition games were canceled in line with the designation of Sunday as a day of mourning for Dr. King.

A Dodgers team physician said Alston, beginning his 15th season as dean of major league managers, has a stone in the right kidney. "As soon as it passes we'll let him go," said Dr. Robert Woods. He said doctors might use a tube to remove the stone if it had not passed today.

Expect Few Golfers For First Day

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The Augusta National golf course opens today for Masters Tournament Week but few golfers are expected to be on hand.

The traditional opening of the course for the Masters was delayed one day because of the nationwide memorial services for Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Many golfers who will play in the Masters, which begins Thursday, are competing in the Greater Greensboro Open Tournament in Greensboro, N.C. The final 36 holes of the tournament were postponed until today by a rainout and services for Dr. King.

Jack Nicklaus, picked as the man to beat in the Masters, isn't expected until Tuesday. Nicklaus, winner in 1963, 1965 and 1966, failed to make the cut last year and has been working hard on his game to try to wipe out the memory of this embarrassment.

Gay Brewer will defend the title he won in a last round duel with Bobby Nichols, and the ever-dominant Arnold Palmer, only four-time winner, is ranked high among the challengers.

Others expected to be among the leaders are Gary Player, 1961 champion; the ever-hopeful Billy Casper, whose game appears strong after a trip to Vietnam to entertain troops, and Doug Sanders, who is aiming for the big ones this year.

The 79-man field includes 53 American pros, 17 foreign pros, 7 American amateurs and 2 foreign amateurs.

Portions of the last two rounds will be televised nationally by CBS.

Wallace Finishes Season With 8.5 Scoring Average

Barry Wallace, former Smith-Cotton high school cage star, now at Southwest Baptist College and a versatile sixth man on the Bearcats team, finished the past season with an 8.5 scoring average.

A 6'2" junior guard-forward for the Bolivar, Mo., basketball team, Wallace netted 69 of 184 field goal attempts and added 32 free-throws for a total of 170 total points in 20 games. Barry's aggressiveness on both offense and defense earned him the nickname of "Animal."

His best performance of the season was in the Ottawa Midwest Tournament against the College of Emporia (Kansas) when he netted 20 points.

The Bearcats finished the 1967-68 season with a 9-11 record.

Four Gold Medals Go to Big Eight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Big Eight won four of seven relay gold medals at the Texas Relays — two each by Kansas State and Kansas — and enjoyed another big weekend second only to last year in its trips to the Texas games.

The final log showed six gold medals and six second place finishes in 18 events Friday and Saturday. Last year it was seven firsts and six seconds. In all events this time, KU has three firsts, K-State two and Oklahoma State one.

K-State used a tremendous closing burst by Charles Collins to win the 440 relay in 40.3 seconds, a tie for the third best time in the event in Big Eight history. Kansas was second in 40.5, Oklahoma fourth in 40.9. Mack Herron, Larry Weldon, and Terry Holbrook were the first three K-State runners.

Kansas won the four-mile relay a fifth straight year, this time in a slow 17:00.3 in a near photo-finish with Drake. Little Gene McClain, Kansas anchor man, was edged by Drake's Elliot Evans at the finish of the distance medley Friday after McClain set the pace. This time McClain waited after getting the baton, letting Evans set the pace, then shot past him on the final turn. Evans rallied and nearly caught him at the tape.

Missouri finished strongly with a 1:50.3 half by Billy Wells on the third carry and a 1:49.4 anchor by Craig Endicott, but it wasn't quite enough to catch Texas in the two-mile relay. Missouri ran 7:26.9, Texas 7:26.

Schoendienst Sees A Tougher Season

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "It's going to be tougher."

That's the estimate of Manager Red Schoendienst who led the St. Louis Cardinals to an impressive National League pennant victory in 1967.

"I don't look for a 10 1/2 game winning margin," Schoendienst continued. "We're the champs so you have to say we're the team to beat."

The Cardinals had been scheduled to open Tuesday night against the Atlanta Braves, but in deference to the memory of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, the game will be played Wednesday night.

King, who was slain by a sniper last Thursday in Memphis, Tenn., will be buried Tuesday in Atlanta.

Schoendienst has pronounced his team in relatively good physical condition. The team ended its exhibition season with a 17-11 record, losing three of the last four games.

Bob Gibson, has been named starting pitcher for the Cardinals while Pat Jarvis will go for the Braves. The same two teams met again Thursday night in St. Louis.

Stiff Test Foreseen In Olympics

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)

U.S. Olympic basketball Coach Henry Iba of Oklahoma State feels foreign competition will be plenty rough and and mighty tall. A 12-man U.S. team was named Sunday, banking more on quickness than on size.

The Olympic trials ended Saturday night with the NAIA All-Stars whipping a cold-shooting AAU team 64-59 in the title game. More than 80 players were considered in the three-day tournament in Albuquerque.

A 45-man committee picked this team: NAIA—Glynn Saulters, 6-foot-2, 175 pounds, Northeast Louisiana; Don Dee, 6-7, 205, St. Mary of the Plains, Kan.

AAU—Calvin Fowler, 6-1, 170, Akron, Ohio, Goodyear; James King, 6-7, Goodyear. Junior College All-Stars—Spencer Haywood, 6-8, 230, Trinidad, Colo., Junior College.

Armed Forces—Mike Barrett, 6-2, 155, U.S. Navy and former West Virginia Tech collegian; John R. Clawson, 6-4, 200, U.S. Army and Michigan; Mike Silliman, 6-6, 225, U.S. Army and U.S. Military Academy.

NCAA—Ken Spain, 6-9, 225, Houston; Jo Jo White, 6-3, 194, Kansas; Bill Hosket, 6-7, 228, Ohio State, Charlie Scott, 6-4, 180, North Carolina.

Alternates—Don Issel, Kentucky, Tom Black, Goodyear, George Carter, U.S. Army; Charles Paulk, Northeastern Oklahoma; Rick Mount, Purdue; and Joe Hamilton, Southwest Christian, Tex.

Iba said the 12 first-team selections will gather at Alamosa, Colo., in early September and four weeks of high-altitude training before exhibition games against professional teams in New York's Madison Square Garden, Cincinnati and possibly Albuquerque.

Old Shirt Safety Device
Against Grease Burns

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Hot grease splashes can really hurt, and treating them certainly slows down dinner preparations. I keep one of my husband's old long-sleeved shirts in the kitchen and put it on when I am frying bacon, chicken or anything that might splash hot grease. I have saved not only burns on my hands and arms but grease spots on my clothes. Most aprons are so inadequate. Also I dust my hands with flour before starting to fry chicken. This keeps the almost inevitable splatters from burning through.—ELEANOR

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I would like to know how to remove the film left in the bottom of aluminum utensils that are constantly used for boiling water. Mine have a deposit almost like metal that has accumulated and I am afraid to use my favorite pot. We are now in Texas but have lived elsewhere before and never had this reaction.—HAZEL

DEAR POLLY—Start your seedlings by using egg shell halves filled with loam and then placed back in the empty egg carton. It is so easy to move about without disturbing them. Seedlings can later be planted in the ground in the shells, which will give way and decompose into useful fertilizer for the plant.—MRS. B. P.

DEAR POLLY—I am answering Marge who wanted to know how to remove wax from her lamb's wool waxing pad. Pour a small amount of liquid detergent on it, pour very hot water over that and rub with your hands until the wax dissolves. Rinse with clear warm water. A few drops of fabric softener with the final rinse will help soften it, too. I do this directly under the faucet and it takes only a short time.—MRS. D. L.

DEAR GIRLS—This procedure should be followed after each use of the lamb's wool applicator. Often when the wax is allowed to harden it is impossible to remove satisfactorily and certainly is no good for applying more wax. Shake well after the thorough rinsing and always stand resting on the handle with the pad up.—POLLY

Charm: Palmer's Extra Club

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
NEA Sports Editor

LAS CROBAS, Puerto Rico—(NEA)—Arnold Palmer has charisma. It oozes out of his tanned face and down his sloping shoulders and now it spilled over onto the hillocks of the El Conquistador golf course.

The course meanders through the arroyos of eastern Puerto Rico, carved through gulches which would be perfect locales for shoot-em-ups. They lugged cameras up the slopes and down the dips of every hole, trained on Palmer playing a round of televised golf. And when he came around a wooded bend, you could almost see Tom Mix leading a posse as Arnold wheeled a gas chariot perilously ahead of the ever-faithful gallery.

This was one of those Shell Wonderful World of Golf matches that peregrinate from such exotic places as Nairobi to Singapore and Manila to Mauna Kea in Hawaii. Palmer's bit in the lush verdure of Puerto Rico fitted the tempo of the series.

He played with Chi Chi Rodriguez and Gay Brewer, a couple of golfing gauchos in supporting roles. The mood was relaxed. Unlike championship play, where a man walks the full 18 holes, they used chugging Harley-Davidson carts to negotiate the tortuous trails and save wear and tear on the legs. It looked like a safari after the golfers holed out and then putt-putted on to the next hole strung out in convoy.

The gallery, however, consisted of foot soldiers—with notable exceptions. Winnie Palmer had insisted she was going to walk, too, but in the bright early morning sun she soon had commandeered a cart and made the trip the easy way.

Her husband, Arnie, charged ahead with confidence. Even par at the end of seven holes, he birdied seven of the final 11 holes to carve a magnificent 65 on a course he had seen only once in his life. Since the official results go into the can for a year before they're released to the adoring television public in '69, it wouldn't be cricket to reveal the official results.

Let's just say that Arnold was smiling and casual most of the way. When Rodriguez went into a long huddle with his caddy, arguing the contour of a putting green, Palmer listened to the shotgun barrage of Spanish phrases and interrupted, knowingly, "It's not right."

It wasn't really a funny line, but the hundred people rimming the green broke up. That's the Palmer charisma.

Arnold approached a birdie putt and flipped over his shoulder to Chi Chi, "This one better go in. I need the money."

Down the road, in San Juan, stood his own jet plane waiting to let him make a quick getaway. He's the only man in golf history ever to win more than $1 million in prize money. If he didn't think it was ostentatious, he'd wear a new pair of golf shoes for every round he plays.

And yet no one resents his success.

He actually looked as though he was on a social outing. The experience of the filming crew was a help. With guys running ahead to set up the shooting for every shot, in the rough or on the fairway, the trio of pros negotiated the 18 holes in the respectable time of five hours and 10 minutes.

Producer Fred Raphael would stand on the tee with a walkie-talkie, communicating with crews 250 yards ahead. He'd say softly, "O.K., Arnie."

Palmer would get up and belt a screamer 250 yards. Then Gay. Then Chi Chi. The principals jumped into carts, Gay and Arnie piloting their own, and chugged to their ball placements. By the time they got there, the cameras were already in position on the green, up ahead.

There was less delay than you'd get on a public course any weekend. And the golf was great. The weather was balmy. The followers of Arnold Palmer were enchanted by the whole scene.

"You're the only man," said one little old lady who could have been from Pasadena, "I'd walk 18 holes for."

Palmer beamed and said, "Let's go have a beer."

STILL PLAYING THE PIPER

'Fix Is Too Risky'

(Last of two related articles.)

By TOMMY THOMAS
NEA Sports Writer

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Del Insko is one of harness racing's most successful drivers. He says, with a touch of sarcasm, that he is asked about three million times a year if his sport is crooked.

He claims that too many people, including most of the drivers in a race, would have to be in on a fix and therefore it's too risky. Lucien Fontaine, a young Canadian driver, says he has too much self-pride to be involved in a fix and challenges anyone to prove a race has ever been rigged.

Anthony Abbatiello figures his license is worth a half million dollars to him, so why louse up a good thing. Richard Thomas will think you an idiot and demand proof at the mere suggestion of a fix. Archie Niles will tell you that fixes have probably occurred occasionally, just as they do in other sports and businesses but not often enough to get excited about.

All these men are outstanding, respected drivers with good records. All drivers are not necessarily in this class, however. Last autumn a driver was suspended for two weeks after being charged for having driven in a manner "inconsistent with an effort to win."

The driver was accused of not pushing his horse hard enough down the home stretch. His answer was that he was afraid the horse was about to break gait, so he didn't go all out. The case was appealed to the State Supreme Court. The driver's defense attorney, the famous F. Lee Bailey, was unable to persuade the court against unanimously upholding the commission's ruling.

John Daly, attorney for the New York State Harness Racing Commission, points out that this was the only case of its kind (where a driver was suspended) that has occurred in the past year. He also points out the steps taken by the commission to prevent fixes.

"For one thing," he states, "anyone who derives any benefit from the tracks—owners, drivers, trainers, mutuel clerks, concessionaires—must be licensed by the commission. We have judges who supervise the track and the pari-mutuel windows, track stewards who keep the barn and paddock area clear of nonlicensed personnel and who eject known undesirables from the grandstands."

Some of the undesirables are touts who sell bettors tips on races. If a tout gives a different tip to eight bettors, he's got to come through with a winner.

"After each race," Daly says, "the horses are given saliva and urine tests to check for caffeine, procaine, etc. The tests are sent to Jamaica to be analyzed and reports are then returned to the commission. They are almost always negative."

Many things can happen to a horse pulling a sulky that are accidental but may look intentional—or vice versa. Examples: getting bumped by other horses, drivers whipping too hard and causing a horse to break gait, getting boxed in by other horses.

When a horse breaks gait, however, a dangerous situation sometimes arises. A driver can take a spill and be run over by a half-dozen horses.

CARDIGAN BAY (6), driven by Stanley Dancer, one of harness racing's greatest horses, takes lead in race at Yonkers Raceway. He was cheered (or booed, according to ticket held) by the capacity crowd.

Daly says the pacers' and trotters' troubles go back to the days when the races were run at county fairs that abounded with crooked book-makers.

"There used to be a lot of scandals with harness racing," he says, "whereas the thoroughbreds were always above such things. Aqueduct is one of the most respected temples of sport. That's because the trotters began at the fairs and thoroughbred racing, 'the sport of kings,' is supported by millionaires' farms."

Daly feels he can speak about the sport with authority. He was a harness driver for seven years, competing in 150-200 races a year on many different tracks. He was never approached before a race concerning any sort of fix.

"The only times I ever heard anything about races being fixed," he recalls, "were after they were over."

The World Today

Deep Change In Nation's Capitol

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Down the mall from the bright bubble of the Capitol dome to the brooding figure in the Lincoln Memorial, Washington looks the same. But a deep change has taken place.

A city that had been slowly hardening into two separate cities, one white and one black, has been made searingly aware it is one. How it reacts to this awareness may hold an answer for other cities afflicted with racial troubles.

One answer seems apparent: A cool and carefully planned response to looting and burning may be able to achieve results without the bloodshed and violence that marked last summer's riots in Newark and Detroit.

In the early stages of the disorders in the capital, the out-numbered police were withdrawn from trouble areas so they would not have to resort to gunfire to protect themselves.

Later, backed by federal troops, they moved forcibly but with restraint against the looters and rounded up curfew violators by the droves.

The result was a minimum of deaths and injuries and a massive 4,800 arrests. The performance of the District of Columbia police and the troops has drawn praise from Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark and is likely to set a pattern for the police in other cities.

There was encouragement also in the immediate response of the white community to the despair the black community inflicted on itself in its blind rage and frustration.

Appeals for food for the persons living in the riot area, where food stores were either burned, looted or locked up, brought a tremendous outpouring from the white areas.

"This is the real beginning of the real meaning of the life of Martin Luther King," said a white civic leader active in the food drive, who was overwhelmed by the response.

For the long haul, however, the Negroes in Washington need what they need in every urban area—more and better jobs, better schools and better housing. And it takes more than a willing spirit to supply them.

Congress has passed bills to meet all these needs and President Johnson has asked for more, but a lack of money has crippled many of the programs.

The day before the rioting started in Washington, the House approved an appropriation bill that eliminated $75 million for a summer program for unemployed youths and an additional $25 million for the Head Start preschool program.

Johnson, who could see the smoke from the burning Negro areas from the White House, would probably like to request some emergency legislation to deal with the problem.

But he has painted himself into a corner as far as seeking new legislation—or at least the funds to go with it—by agreeing to substantial budget cuts in order to get Congressional approval of a tax increase.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

You'd never guess it by looking at her—because she doesn't like to show her age—but the average U.S. working woman is getting older. She's 40 now. In most cases she's got a husband, too. Over 57 per cent of working women are married.

How much water is in the Atlantic Ocean? Well, give or take a few drops, it is estimated to contain 82 quintillion, 171 quadrillion, 672 trillion, 175 billion, 125 million, 450 thousand, 100 gallons.

An old saying goes, "It ain't what you want that makes you fat—it's what you eat." What you eat also makes you smart. Scientists now link impaired intelligence and slow learning ability with malnutrition in early childhood.

Prosperity note: Some 79 per cent of American families now own automobiles, and 25.1 per cent have two or more.

Sometime this year the nation's trucks and passenger vehicles will reach the 100 million mark, or one for every two persons. Only four automobiles were registered in the United States in 1895. And here's an irony, in 1904 only two cars were registered in Kansas City—and these two had a collision.

US Holds Good Position

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. William C. Westmoreland has pictured the United States—as it faces possible peace talks with North Vietnam—as operating from a position of military advantage.

Westmoreland, ending two days of intensive talks with President Johnson and other senior officials, told White House newsmen Sunday that "militarily we have never been in better relative position in South Vietnam."

He asserted that "the spirit of the offensive is now prevalent throughout Vietnam, with advantage being taken of the enemy's weakened military condition."

The general flew off immediately afterward for California and briefed former President Dwight D. Eisenhower before heading for Saigon.

been too optimistic in the past, read his statement with Johnson at his left shoulder and Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford at his right.

The U.S. commander in Vietnam, soon to return to Washington to become Army chief of staff, ruled out any questions because of what he called the sensitive nature of events.

The White House later said Westmoreland was referring to tentative moves being made by both the United States and North Vietnam toward possible negotiations.

Possible negotiations with North Vietnam were a major topic of discussion in the White House meetings Saturday and Sunday—meetings that substituted for a planned Honolulu conference called off because of the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King and the widespread rioting that followed.

U.S. sources said meanwhile that President Johnson has taken another step to de-escalate the bombing of North Vietnam by setting the 19th Parallel about 170 miles above the Demilitarized Zone as the northern limit for air strikes. The public-

LBJ Appeals For Passage of Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has dispatched urgent appeals to congressional leaders for swift passage of his civil rights bill.

The new pleas for legislative speed were disclosed by government officials Sunday night just after Johnson ordered 2,000 Army regulars to Baltimore. Washington was quieting with 11,600 troopers in her streets; 5,000 more patrolled Chicago.

There were signs that Congress, jarred by the looting, burning and violence almost on its doorstep, would heed Johnson's plea and seek House action this week on the Senate-passed civil rights bill.

House Republican Leader Gerald Ford indicated he might drop his opposition to an early vote, but made no promise. He guaranteed only that he would make an early decision.

Johnson flew over the still-smoking ruins of the capital's burned-out inner-city areas late Sunday in a helicopter. With him was Gen. William C. Westmoreland. The American commander in Vietnam, who spent almost two days conferring with Johnson and high presidential advisers before starting the trip back to Saigon.

Ford was one of a number of congressional leaders, it was learned, to whom Johnson sent letters urging prompt action on the civil rights bill and its hotly debated open-housing provisions.

House Democratic Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma was another. Previously made public was a letter to House Speaker John W. McCormack in which Johnson termed the rights bill "the most immediate" of "the many actions Congress can take."

His letters also asked prompt passage of two other bills aimed at easing slum tensions and dealing with the disorders which reached a crescendo after the assassination in Memphis of Dr. Martin Luther King, Negro apostle of nonviolence.

One was the omnibus housing bill, with its long-term goal of 10 million low-income dwellings. The other was an anticrime bill, stalled since last session.

Ford said he favors the rights bill but has insisted that it be worked over in a House-Senate conference committee, to remove what he considers defects, before the House acts. The administration fears this would expose the bill to another long Senate filibuster.

As Sunday neared its close, White House sources said no decision had been made on when—or if—Johnson will address a joint session of Congress. Such a session had been slated for tonight but later was postponed, with no new date set.

The Proud individuals involved in the trial of Christ are represented by Caiaphas and Peter. In each instance overwhelming pride became the cause of suffering for Christ. Just as their price added to the injury of body and spirit which Christ had to suffer, so sinful pride in our hearts adds to the burden of our suffering Savior. We offer this complete kit at cost as a public service... a big 3x5 foot flag of colorfast cotton with double stitched stripes, a 6-foot two piece jointed staff with ball top decoration, halyard, heavy metal bracket with screws for permanent mounting on window or door of home, instruction folder and flag etiquette folder... all in heavy corrugated storage kit. Get your kit now by coming in to our office at address shown below.

Remember there are more than 20 nationally important holidays on which the flag should fly... New Years, Lincoln's and Washington's Birthdays, Memorial Day, Flag Day, Veteran's Day, and many others. May every home in town show the colors.
